

9 reasons out-of-state investors analyze from their phone before they fly

Swipe →

01

Run the address before you book the flight

Most remote investors fly to see properties a 15-second verdict would have removed from the list. Run the whole shortlist from the couch first.

02

Tax, vacancy and appreciation for a state you do not live in

Every state's assumptions are published on its /markets page and applied automatically in the verdict. You do not have to guess what property tax looks like two time zones away.

03

Hard money and DSCR lenders in the state you are buying in (Pro)

The lender directory filters by the state of the property, not the state you live in. It unlocks with the first Pro payment.

04

Save across markets and compare side by side (Pro)

Save properties from three cities and read them on one screen. Unlimited saves and comparison are Pro; the free account saves ten.

05

The verdict runs in 15 seconds, free

Paste any US address. Multi-source value, a rent estimate, the Deal Gap and six strategy snapshots come back without a signup or a card.

06

Three value sources, shown side by side

Zillow, RentCast and Redfin estimates are pulled live and blended into one IQ Estimate. Every source stays visible. When one has no data for the address it reads unavailable; nothing is made up.

07

Works on addresses that are not listed

Any US street address resolves to public records and live estimates, listed or not. An off-market lead gets the same verdict as a Zillow listing.

08

Built for the phone you already have out

Paste a Zillow link or an address, or scan the property from the camera in the iOS and Android apps. Same verdict, same numbers, wherever you are standing.

09

The Deal Gap, in dollars

Asking price minus the price that works. That one number is the offer conversation, and it is on the screen before you have spoken to anyone.
